Keystone Musical Arts Center Announces

Homeschool Music Information Night Wednesday, February 20 at 7:00 PM

February 11, 2019 Camp Hill, PA – The Keystone Musical Arts Center (KMAC) will be hosting a meeting on Wednesday, February 20, 7:00 PM – 8:30 PM to discuss music education for homeschoolers in south-central Pennsylvania. This is a free, no obligation, no sales event open to all families with homeschooled children who are looking to advance opportunities for arts education and experiences in this area. Representatives from various homeschool organizations and coops are also expected to participate.

Topics of discussion include:

- Existing classes and programs - positives and negatives
- Homeschool band, chorus and musical theatre programs
- What music education or events would families like to see
- Needs for various age groups
- Funding sources for new programs
- Creation of a homeschool music committee

It's anticipated that much of the discussion will be focused on a potential homeschool concert band and affordable private or small group lessons on band instruments. The school would also like to gauge the interest in hosting a "choose your instrument" event/class/camp.

The meeting will be led by Terry Selders, Director of KMAC, and Barb Gerber, Homeschool Program Lead. Barb is a former homeschool mom herself and continues to work with homeschoolers in various capacities. She has 18 years of experience teaching K-12 music, band and chorus in private school. She has a Master's in Music Education from Boston University and is a member of PMEA and NAFME. You can read her full bio on the school's website at KMAC.org.
